I am here to assist you in stepping into your true path of the heart. For that purpose, I ask you to please read and sign this agreement to establish lines of responsibility. My intentions during your sessions are to assist you in your letting go of and releasing old beliefs and emotional patterns from your body/mind/spirit on their core level of expression, help you to create new ways of connecting, thinking and knowing, increase well being and clarity with hearing your inner voice, the call of your heart.

Responsibility rests with you. Each session is unique.

It is imperative to have clear intentions, believe and be committed to your intended outcome. Gifts come in many forms and often not in the way we expect. It has often taken many years to create the conditions in your being and they take time to shift.

The effects of sessions are sometimes subtle and sometimes powerful. Following each session, it is important for you to focus on the positive and not look for “what is wrong.” Focus upon what is right! At times you may feel worse before you feel better. This is known as a “healing opportunity,” a release of that which helped create your current expression but now no longer serves you. When you clear out what holds you back from stepping into your authentic self, You may feel “uncomfortable” and “different” as you temporarily walk between the old and the new reflections of yourself.

You are responsible for your own wellbeing.
